1. What cookies are

Cookies are small text files stored on your device when you visit a website. They help the site work properly and show us how it is used. This policy explains which cookies www.macprotectionsolutions.com uses and how you can control them. Please read it alongside our Privacy Policy.

2. The types of cookies we use

- Strictly necessary: needed for the website to work, such as remembering your cookie choices and keeping the site secure. These cannot be switched off.
- Analytics: help us understand how visitors use the site, such as which pages are popular, so we can improve it. These are only set if you click Accept.
- Marketing: we do not currently use advertising or marketing cookies. If this changes, we will update this policy and ask for your consent first.

3. Managing your cookie choices

When you first visit our site, a banner asks whether you accept analytics cookies. You can change your mind at any time using the Cookie settings link at the bottom of every page.

You can also block or delete cookies through your browser settings. Blocking strictly necessary cookies may stop parts of the website working properly.
